

Money Moved 2025 — What’s Included?

| Type of donation | USD Amount Donated in 2025 | What is included? | Can we measure these donations precisely? |
|--|----------------------------|--|--|
| Grants by TLYCS (US) to our recommended charities | $10,019,059 | All gifts made directly to TLYCS US for purposes of granting to our recommended charities. This includes checks, bank transfers, gifts of stock, donor-advised funds, corporate matching, payroll giving, crypto donations. It also gifts made via Prism (our UK fiscal sponsor). | Yes |
| Grants by TLYCS Australia to our recommended charities (in USD equivalent) | $8,779,010 | All gifts made to TLYCS Australia for purposes of supporting the programs that our recommended charities run. | Yes |
| Rapid Response Fund | $778,161 | This represents funds raised together with Founders Pledge for the Rapid Response Fund—a fast, high-impact way to keep critical programs running and ensure that every dollar goes where it was needed most. | Yes |
| Donations reported to us by our recommended charities as influenced by us | $2,804,273 | Money donated directly to our recommended charities where the charity can attribute the gift to our influence (by having a donor indicate that we influenced the gift, e.g. via a “where did you hear about us?” question, or in some cases by tracking donations made from web traffic referred by our site). | No, we are only able to track a portion of these donations as we are limited by the ability of our charities to track donations that we influence. Only about half of our recommended charities report any donations to us, and even those charities that are able to attribute donations to us have wide variations in the quality of their donation tracking. Some have excellent tracking (though we expect even these charities miss some donations, as it’s rare for a nonprofit to have perfect information about where their donors come from) and some have very rudimentary tracking. |

| Donations reported to us by our supporters | $1,460,390 | Money donated directly to our charities where the donor tells us we influenced their gift. | No. We undercount gifts in this category because we can only track donations where donors explicitly inform us that our work inspired their gifts, either in conversation or in response to a survey we send out. We have reported data from fewer than 100 donors, and we're very confident that we're missing donations of this type. |
| Donations reported by intermediaries | $224,520 | Money donated to an intermediary for purposes of granting it to our charities, where the intermediary can attribute the donation to our influence. The intermediaries are typically organizations that facilitate tax deductible giving for non-US donors. One notable intermediary we do not include in our money moved is GiveWell. We know we influence some donors to donate via GiveWell, however, since these donors have chosen to give through GiveWell rather than The Life You Can Save, we assume GiveWell played a major role in their giving decisions. We therefore exclude these gifts from our metrics as a way of being conservative in our impact assessment. | No. We undercount gifts in this category because we are only able to track a portion of these donations as we are limited by the ability of our intermediaries to track donations that we influence. While some intermediaries have a good (though not perfect ability to track gifts), others have no tracking in place. Where judgment calls are necessary in determining our influence, we aim to be reasonable and conservative in our approach. |
